Getting Started

Sources of Financing

Personal Assets: The first place to look for money is you! The majority of new businesses are financed mostly or exclusively by the founder's own resources. Determine how much money you will need to start your business. Then determine how much money you have to invest in your business as equity capital. Be expected to invest at least some of your own money, as lenders view this as evidence of your commitment to the business. If you do not have enough personal capital to meet all of the financial needs, you must consider a lender or investor for the balance.

Friends and Relatives: Many small businesses are financed either with borrowed money or equity investments from friends and relatives. People who know you well are often willing to help you get started by providing financial support to your business. However be aware of the downside, if the money is lost or cannot be repaid, personal problems can result. Remember to keep the relationship businesslike. Friends and relatives are also potential co-signers or collateral providers for loans.

Trade or Supplier Credit: Payment terms offered by your suppliers are a potential source of funds.

Customers: When customers pay for work in advance or provide some of the material or service themselves, in effect they are helping to finance your business operations.

Leasing Assets: Reducing expenses is a way of raising capital because it frees up funds that would have been spent otherwise.

Commercial Finance Companies: Commercial finance companies make both personal and business loans at interest rates several points above that which banks usually charge.

Grants: State and federal government agencies, and non-profit foundations make grants available. The vast majority of grant funding is to support projects that will benefit the public such as scientific and medical research, educational activities, and environmental programs, etc.

Venture Capitalists and Angel Investors: Venture capitalists and angel investors are another resource in meeting your financial needs. Angel investors look for businesses that have developed a complete business plan and the founders are willing to make significant investments of personal resources. Businesses are expected to impact the local economy through job creation, direct investment, or secondary economic impacts.

Early Stage Seed Investment Credit (Act 255)

Angel Investment Tax Credits (Act 255)

Act 255 creates two tax credit programs for early stage seed investments and angel investments. Commerce must certify that the credits go to qualified new business ventures which:

- Are headquartered in Wisconsin
- Employ less than 100 people, and at least 51% of those are in Wisconsin
- Are engaged in, or committed to engage in manufacturing, agriculture, or processing or assembling products and conducting research and development or developing a new product or business process
- Are not engaged in traditional financial, consulting, professional services, retailing, hospitality, construction or transportation activity
- Have been operated in Wisconsin for not more than seven consecutive years
- Have not received more than $1 million in investments that qualify for angel tax credits

The Early Stage Seed Investment Credit against individual and corporate income and franchise taxes is equal to 25% of the initial investment paid to an investment fund manager to invest in qualified new business ventures in any taxable year, beginning after December 31, 2004. There is a $35 million maximum for all combined credits claimed in all tax years. Partnerships, limited liability companies or tax-option corporations may not claim the credit, and Commerce must certify that fund managers are eligible to accept and properly invest venture capital.

The Angel Investment Tax Credit authorizes an individual angel investor to receive an income tax credit of up to 12.5% of any bona fide angel investment, to a maximum of $500,000 for each investment made in any two consecutive taxable years beginning after December 31, 2004. The maximum allowable aggregate credit amount is $30 million for all tax years. Investments are defined as the purchase of an equity interest or other expenditure in qualified new business ventures, made by an individual or network of individuals who regularly review new businesses for potential investment.

Commerce must publicly list the eligible venture investors and qualified new business ventures that it certifies, and make an annual report on investment activity. Act 255 also requires Commerce to define what expenditures other than equity investments constitute bona fide angel investments, and to develop rules limiting angel investments to $3 million per year and venture investments to $3.5 million per year.

Technology Commercialization Grant and Loan Program (Act 255)

The second key element of Act 255 is the creation of a Technology Commercialization Grant and Loan Program funded at $2.6 million annually. It is administered by the Department of Commerce to ensure that grant recipients are located and grants are spent in Wisconsin and that the applicants are viable. The program authorizes five types of grants and loans:

- Early Stage Planning grants and loans, to cover up to $15,000 in professional services needed to apply for federal R&D funding or to achieve business objectives required by third party investors. Recipients must have enough other funding to cover at least 25% of total project costs.
- Matching grants and loans of up to 20% of project costs or $250,000 (whichever is less) to fund professional services that help a recipient develop or commercialize innovative products, processes or services. Recipients must either have secured, or be about to secure, federal funding to bolster their efforts.
- Bridge grants and loans of up to 75% of project costs or $100,000 (whichever is less) to tide recipients over until they receive third party financing or federal grants to develop or commercialize their innovations.
- Venture Capital grants and loans of up to 50% of project costs or $250,000 (whichever is less) to enhance recipients' ability to secure early stage third party financing.
- Entrepreneurial & Technology Transfer Center grants of up to $500,000 a year to finance centers that serve multiple regions of Wisconsin by providing entrepreneurs with planning, intellectual property, referral and similar business development services.

Two key points to re-emphasize about these Technology Commercialization Grants and Loans. First, they are supplemental funding. Applicants and recipients must be small businesses or entrepreneurs who have applied for or are waiting to receive federal grants for early stage R&D funding or early stage third party financing. And second, the Wisconsin Department of Commerce must confirm that applicants are viable and that their innovative products or services are primarily developed in or sold from this state.
